

Project Title: Academic Stress and Self-efficacy of Adolescents in Hong Kong

Project Summary:

The project investigated the stress, coping, academic self-efficacy, social support and sources of self-efficacy of secondary school students in Hong Kong. The understanding of these variables are important for parents and teachers in helping students cope with academic stress. The results showed that there is significant gender differences in support from friend and significant other.